

London

in Times of Crisis and Change

ENGL 259, Literature and Social Difference, 5 cr., VLPA, DIV, and (by arrangement with instructor) W
Peter Buckroyd, Bill Streitberger

Great Britain, like many of its European neighbors, has had its fair share of crisis and change. Reading about it is one thing. Visiting the sites where the change took place is an invaluable addition to understanding the past and, in part, the present. We'll begin with Shakespeare's age and end with Brexit. Each week there will be a classroom discussion of assigned reading followed by several site visits and supplementary activities designed to complement readings by bringing them to life. The goal of the program is to help students become more informed about the great crises in London's culture and their effect in shaping modern London

Program fee of $3,500 includes room, breakfast and dinner, London transport pass, fees and admissions to course related sites. It do not include the UW Study Abroad fee, airfare or lunches. For further information visit the Study Abroad website under 2019 Exploration Seminars under 'England', or contact Bill Streitberger (streitwr@uw/edu).
